LONG BACK IN CLINIC AT GALVESTON

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—Gov. Earl K. Long of Louisiana, who says he wants to return to his home state and enter a New Orleans hospital, was back in a Texas mental clinic today for at least another week while a judge pondered whether to free him.

District Judge L. D. Godard said Monday night after the habeas corpus hearing he felt more time should be spent studying the case before he ruled on it. He ordered Long back to the mental clinic while he delayed his decision one week.

Judge Godard also announced postponement of today's sanity hearing after a conference with Probate Judge Hugh Gibson. The sanity hearing also was moved back one week.

Sen. Russell Long (D-La.), the governor's nephew and son of the late Sen. and Gov. Huey P. Long, disagreed with Judge Godard's postponement.

"It seems to be a very crucial point has been overlooked," said Sen. Long, who attended the hearing but was barred from testifying by court order.

Attorneys for Gov. Long asked the court to bar those representing Mrs. Long from testifying. Mrs. Long did not appear in court.

Sen. Long told newsmen after the hearing the point he had mentioned should have been clear to anyone, even those with no legal training.

The senator has hinted he might seek the governorship.

Gov. Long, leaving the courthouse, yelled: "Still in jail. Still in jail. Texas style."

Earlier, he said: "I don't belong in an asylum."

He said if he had been freed, he would have entered Ochsner Hospital in New Orleans.

If he had gotten back to Louisiana, he said, he probably would have vetoed some bills. In Long's absence, acting Gov. Lethor Frazer Monday signed or vetoed the last of the bills passed by the Louisiana Legislature, which adjourned a week ago.

In his petition for the writ of habeas corpus hearing Long said he was a "governor in exile by force and kidnapping." He charged (Turn to Page Twelve)

Indictments Returned in Strike-Dynamite Plot

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP)—A Vance County grand jury indicted eight men, including four union officials, on charges of plotting dynamite violence in the bitter textile strike here.

The jury returned the indictments Monday.

Boyd Payton of Charlotte, Carolina director of the Textile Workers Union of America, was named with three other union officials.

The indictments charged the men with conspiring to dynamite a Carolina Power & Light Co. substation transformer which feeds power to the mills; dynamite the boiler room at the South Henderson mill; and destroy the main office building at the South Henderson mill.

The strike began Nov. 17 after the company called for removal of an arbitration clause in the contract. The two mills reopened for limited operations Feb. 16. This was followed by sporadic violence. National guardsmen have been on the scene since May 12.

Serving with him as executive board will be Fred Emhardt, first vice president; William R. Walker, second vice president; Mrs. E. G. Hamilton, secretary; Paul Harrington, treasurer; Edward A. Ryberg, assistant treasurer.

Earlier in the evening, in an open membership session, the following directors were re-elected for three-year terms on the board: Fred Emhardt, Mrs. E. G. Hamilton, E. C. Slick, Howard Lauffenberger, Eugene Brown, Mrs. Harold Baker and (Turn to Page Twelve)

Convict Disappears At Dad's Funeral

DENVER (AP)—An inmate of the state penitentiary, returned here to attend his father's funeral, strolled to freedom Monday when his guard left to fix a tire on a prison car. The guard, Andrew Kimnich, left Louis Vallejos, 26, at the home of the latter's parents. The prisoner is serving concurrent sentences of 10 to 20 years for aggravated robbery and 6 to 8 years for manslaughter.

Billy Graham Has Nice Words About Russian Behavior

PARIS (AP)—Evangelist Billy Graham said today he found the Soviet people "had a high standard of morals, especially in regards to sex."

Arriving in Paris after a five-day visit to Moscow, he told a news conference he found that couples did not put their arms around one another in the streets, and in a park he saw only a few people holding hands.

"Everything struck us as being very clean," he said. Recently the evangelist attacked the conduct of Britons in London parks.

Graham said he was much impressed by a visit to the tomb of Stalin and Lenin.

"No matter how powerful a man is, there comes a time when he must die," he said. "The Bible teaches us this," he said.

Graham went to Moscow on an "exploratory mission." He said he hopes to return to preach there some day.

"I read a great spiritual hunger and a sense of insecurity in people's faces," Graham said. He had promised political officials (Turn to Page Twelve)

Berserk Gunman Gives Up Meekly After Long Vigil

CHARLESTON, Ill. (AP)—A berserk gunman who had held his half-sister hostage while a force of lawmen ringed his house laid down his arms and walked out without gunfire today.

Kenneth E. Adkins, 22, also released his half-sister, Mrs. Myra Irene Kennedy, 34, of Paris, without harm.

The end of the tense vigil around the white frame house came after Mervin Beil, a lawyer, talked with Adkins for about 10 minutes explaining his rights.

Adkins had held his half sister hostage, demanding the life of a policeman he hates in exchange for hers.

"I will shoot anyone who tries to apprehend me," Kenneth Eugene Adkins, 22, wrote in a pencil-scribbled note he tossed out a window.

Police Chief Smokey Pauley of Charleston said Adkins threatened to kill Myra Irene Kennedy, 34, of Paris, Ill., if officers tried to rush the house.

"We'll wait him out," Pauley said as more than 100 state troopers and local policemen settled down four doors away from the one-story home. Adkins was armed with a rifle and shotgun.

Adkins demanded that Charleston Police Capt. Logan Cox be brought to the home, saying he would kill him and then shoot himself. Cox said Adkins apparently was angry because of the numerous times the officer had locked Adkins up for assault and disorderly conduct.

Big Fund To Improve Reactor Facilities

WASHINGTON (AP)—A five million-dollar allocation to improve reactor facilities at the Shippingport, Pa., atomic power plant was included in a 230-million dollar authorization bill passed Monday by Congress for atomic energy construction.

The allotment is contingent on Duquesne Light Co., which operates the plant for the Atomic Energy Commission, providing an estimated 15 million dollars to build more electrical generating capacity.

Plans call for approximately doubling the station's present 60,000-kilowatt net capacity.

Chairman Says Program For Funds Must Be Provided To Finance Appropriations

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. Lawrence says increases in the state gasoline tax and driver's license fees must be approved to pay for Pennsylvania's road construction and maintenance program in 1959-61.

Lawrence sent a special message to the Legislature Monday reiterating his views that the boosts are needed to keep the state's highway program on a solid footing.

He has asked lawmakers to raise the gasoline levy from five to six cents a gallon and the annual driver's license fee from $1 to $3.

Lawrence emphasized that the improved revenue picture which caused the administration to drop its request for an increase of from $10 to $15 in the automobile registration fee hasn't altered the other proposed increases.

At his news conference Monday, the governor said the administration would offer amendments this week to restore a House bill banning billboards along federal interstate highways.

HARRISBURG (AP)—The chairman of the House Appropriations Committee laid it out on the line for House Republicans today: No voting for appropriations until after a tax program is passed to finance them.

"Everybody wants to vote for appropriations but nobody wants to vote for taxes," said Rep. Dean Polen (D-Washington). "This time we are not rolling the appropriations bills until a tax program is enacted to cover those appropriations."

Polen, who Monday night disclosed that his Democratic-controlled committee is recommending $22 million dollars in net budget cuts, said he could not understand how Senate Republicans could be considering a figure of 60 millions.

"I want to see it before I believe it," he told The Associated Press.

Rep. Albert W. Johnson, House Republican floor leader, freely predicted the budget question will end up in the lap of a joint House-Senate Committee.

Asked about Polen's statement that no appropriations will be put to a vote until a tax plan is adopted, Johnson said he had no objection to such a plan.

"Actually," he said, "we'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

Polen's reductions in Gov. Lawrence's proposed $3,870,000,000 budget were principally in the field of education where actual spending figures for the past two years are in hand. Estimates of six (Turn to Page Twelve)

Another Attempt Being Made For Foreign Aid Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—House members who want less money spent on foreign aid mustered today in an attempt to cut another 300 million dollars from the proposed program.

The $3,642,600,000 authorization bill before the House already represents a cut of $268,800,000 from President Eisenhower's recommendations.

Rep. Alvin M. Bentley (R-Mich.), a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, said he is drafting amendments to the bill to reduce its total to about $3,300,000,000.

Supporters of foreign aid registered an impressive margin—277-93—Monday on the preliminary vote whether the House should take up the bill. It raised their hopes of warding off any further deep cuts—at least until the separate legislation actually appropriating the funds provides another test.

Business Charges Cramp Style of Labor Leaders

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A group of top union leaders complained today employers have them cornered for the moment. But they said they will rally to win new gains for workers.

Heads of former CIO unions now in the AFL-CIO said their style is cramped by business charges that labor is responsible for inflation, that unions are marked by corruption, and that labor groups wield vast monopoly power.

Such union leaders as Walter Reuther of the Auto Workers, David J. McDonald of the Steelworkers and James B. Carey of the International Electrical Workers asserted the business charges are phony but have put labor in a tough position with the public.

The talks were made in a two-day conference of the AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Department, home of most of the former CIO unions under the labor merger.

DIPLOMATS SPECULATE ON POSSIBILITY OF NEW RED PROPOSAL ON WEST BERLIN

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

GENEVA (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and U. S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter met unexpectedly today at Gromyko's request to discuss the final phase of the Big Four conference on Berlin.

There was immediate speculation among Western diplomats that Gromyko might have some new proposal either on breaking the East-West deadlock over Berlin, or on how to wind up the conference.

Earlier Herter met with British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd amid reports that the Western powers were split over the problem of a summit conference following up the foreign ministers meeting.

Britain was reported urging U. S. and French consideration of accepting a summit session even if the present meeting ended in failure.

The Soviet foreign minister went to Herter's villa. In another conference crisis last week Herter had gone to Gromyko's villa. The Russian was accompanied by A. A. Soldatov, chief of the American section of the Soviet Foreign Office.

Herter had Assistant Secretary of State Livingston Merchant and Llewellyn Thompson, U. S. ambassador to Moscow, as his advisers in the meeting.

The Western allies were reported making an 11th hour attempt to hammer out a stopgap accord on Berlin with the Soviet Union.

Diplomatic officials said foreign ministers of the United States, Britain and France may present new documents setting forth their latest ideas.

Herter and Lloyd conferred for an hour at Herter's villa.

While Western informants were tight-lipped about the meeting, Herter presumably told the British that President Eisenhower continues strongly opposed to a summit conference unless it is justified by some success here.

The stopgap formula under study by Western experts would represent the minimum Western terms for agreeing to a summit meeting—barring a reversal of policy such as the British government apparently is advocating.

Informants indicated the West's approach would temporarily set aside both Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's plan for turning West Berlin into a free city, and the Western plan for restoring East and West Berlin as a united city through a free election.

In general, informants said, Lloyd spelled out Friday the sort of approach the Allies would like to use—on condition the Soviets withdraw their demand for a one-year limit on the Western occupation of Berlin.

Lloyd's starting point was that any new or revised arrangement must leave intact the right of the United States, (Turn to Page Twelve)

Quaker State Boosts Buckeye Crude Prices

OIL CITY, Pa. (AP)—Quaker State Refining Co. today began paying producers of Buckeye Pennsylvania Grade crude oil 22 cents more a barrel, upping the price to $3.47 a barrel.

The increase is the first the company has given Buckeye producers in a year. A company spokesman said continuing improvement in quality of the crude oil over the last month made the increase possible.

Buckeye Pennsylvania Grade crude is produced in southeastern Ohio.

Dems Challenge President To Seek Verdict From People

WASHINGTON (AP)—Confident Democrats challenged President Eisenhower today to seek a verdict from the people on his legislative program.

If Eisenhower carries his case to the public in television-radio and other speeches, Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont) said in an interview the Democrats will be ready for battle.

"We'll carry our fight to the people, too, on the basis of the record we are making in Congress," Mansfield said. "I think it is a good idea for the President to report to the people and let them decide on the basis of the record, as they have in the last three congressional elections."

Mansfield's chief, Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, told the Senate Monday that Republicans who are criticizing this as a "do nothing" Congress "will wake up some time late in September and find out it just ain't so."

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the Senate minority leader, backed up the contention of Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, the GOP national chairman, that Eisenhower is the best salesman the Republicans have.

Dirksen said Eisenhower had discussed with GOP congressional leaders the possibility of 15-minute TV-radio appearances to whip up support for foreign aid, labor regulation and other administration bills which have come under heavy Democratic attack.

Representatives Of Hammonds In Japan Visit Here

Two Japanese licensees of Hammond Iron Works conferred in Warren Monday on their way back home to Tokyo after attending the Petroleum Exhibition in the Coliseum in New York City recently.

Zenkichi Kinukawa, Senior Managing Director and Takao Kirota, Chief Researching Engineer, both of Toyo Kasei Kogyo K. K. company in Tokyo, attended the New York exhibition in conjunction with Hammond's licensees exhibitions there.

The two men represent a company which has built the largest floating roof tank in the world, 210 feet by 48 feet. On it they used Hammond's patented tube seal.

All tanks and storage vessels made by the Japan concern, and all Hammond licensees, are done under Hammond's design and pattern.

Kinukawa and Hirota will go to San Francisco then back to Tokyo this week.

State's Schools And Hospitals Ask For More Money

HARRISBURG (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee has asked the full House to decide what to do about requests that the state's public schools and hospitals be given more money than Gov. Lawrence proposed in his 1959-61 budget.

Rep. J. Dean Polen (D-Washington), chairman, said Monday night the committee felt more money should be included in Lawrence's $1,870,000,000 budget but "I leave it to this House to resolve."

Polen made his remarks in presenting to the House the Committee's findings that the budget can be trimmed by a net of some 12 million dollars.

Polen noted that his cut in the budget, plus the reduction already made through revised estimates in last biennium's deficit, add up to a net decrease of some $8 million dollars in the original request made by Lawrence March 2.

He said raising the state subsidy base for support of public schools from the present $5,800 per teaching unit (22 secondary or 30 elementary pupils) to $6,000 would cost another 28 million dollars in the present biennium, and raising the subsidy base for hospital aid from $9 a day per patient to $10 would cost 4 millions more.

"I might add," he said, "that the various colleges, universities, schools and institutions feel that (the governor's recommendations) is not sufficient."

"We feel this is the absolute minimum on which this commonwealth can operate and maintain the services to the people of this Commonwealth," Polen said in submitting the recommendations.

Avoid Leaning on Others Before You Stand Alone

BY MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

A commercial artist found himself in constant trouble with art editors. He'd accept a commission, and as the time for delivery neared he cooked up excuses to delay it.

Finally, with the help of psychotherapy he solved his problem and was able to say "No" to editors who tried to force promises from him he wasn't sure he could keep.

Almost at once, more problems appeared. He began to lose friends and broke with his girl. To his doctor he accused himself bitterly of his failure to maintain human relationships. One day his doctor said mildly, "You certainly keep your foot on your own neck."

Later, he had one of those flashes of realization psychologists call an "insight." He realized that the friends he'd lost had all one trait in common: the need to make his decisions for him. He saw that these relationship failures had not been failures at all but triumphs, a new growth of the same self-respect that had enabled him to say "No" to the pressuring art editors.

With this altered view of his "failures," he found he could recover some of his friends; but on a new, independent, more satisfying basis.

Perhaps this story applies to a Mrs. E. who writes, "My neighbor has been wonderful to me since we moved here. Yesterday I told her to mind her own business. I feel terrible about it. She'd told me I ought to punish my little boy for running up and down the apartment hall. Shall I apologize? She's been so helpful, baby-sitting for us, introducing us to people."

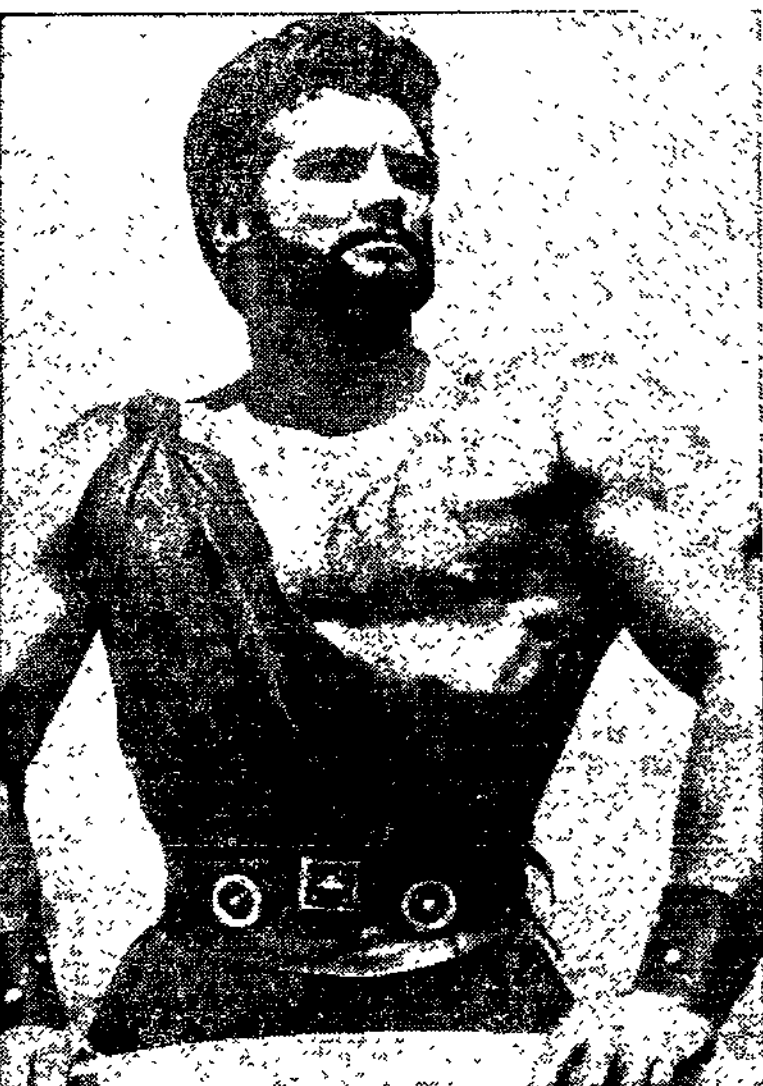

For which helpfulness she wants the right to make your decisions. Let's let time go by for a bit. And open our minds to the possibility that ingratitude to this lady is not a fault but a development.

When we assert our own judgment of our child's need for punishment to a friend or relative, we are also rejecting dependence on their judgment. Used to trusting it more than our own, we feel horribly mean and unkind when we say "This is my business."

But our self-accusations, like those of the artist who lost his dominating friends, is just our old fear of being alone with our own decisions, our old dependence trying to scare us back into the nursery.

If we try to recover this friend before we can feel respect for our self-assertion, we may go right back to trading our obedience for her helpfulness.

St. Lawrence Seaway

By The Associated Press
The opening of the 185-mile St. Lawrence Seaway gives Pennsylvania its second seaport. Erie now joins Philadelphia as an outlet for trans-Atlantic shipping.

At dedication ceremonies May 18, Gov. Lawrence said Erie's seaport "will open new commercial vistas for the manufacturers of at least 20 counties in western Pennsylvania."

William Davlin, state secretary of commerce, told the Associated Press "the seaway can prove to be an industrial advantage just as tangible as our labor force, our railroads, our coal and our market position have been in the past and remain today."

"Public and private agencies in Erie and western Pennsylvania, and state agencies here in Harrisburg," Davlin added,

"will have to work hard so that Pennsylvania secures her full share."

With the official opening of the Seaway, the city of Erie—a community of 130,000—dedicated its new expanded port facilities to handle ocean going ships.

And Lawrence says he will urge the state Legislature to approve a $600,000 appropriation for further expansion work during the next two years.

To facilitate vehicular traffic to the port, the state hopes to expedite construction of an Erie-Pittsburgh Freeway. The governor said the proposed highway is essential for the complete development of the Erie port program.

Mayor Arthur Gardner of Erie says that the city "will soon see the day when new industry will locate here because of the port development program."

Amid expressions of optimism looms the question: Will the Seaway have any serious effect on the Port of Philadelphia?

Malcolm A. Buckley, chairman of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce Traffic and Transportation Council, says he doesn't think the Seaway will help Philadelphia because of the competition for midwestern tonnage.

Buckley said he figures that Philadelphia will lose $40 million annually if it is not permitted to lower rail freight rates to meet Seaway competition.

He claims the city's multi-million dollar grain export trade will be "wiped out" if the Interstate Commerce Commission rejects the new low rates scheduled to go into effect June 18.

Buckley says a freight war is developing between the Port of Philadelphia and the Great Lakes ports served by the publicly-financed Seaway.

But D. Britton Faunce, chairman of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, says he doesn't think the Seaway will add freight or take any away from Philadelphia.

Faunce said that Philadelphia will have to compete with the other Eastern ports in order to bring more freight through Philadelphia.

He explained that Philadelphia would promote "Operation Can Opener," a project aimed at taking away general cargo from New York.

How can the Seaway help the port of Philadelphia? The interest it has generated should result in an increase in overall volume of foreign trade and

I have nothing against playing who compete freely in the bidding. If you sit back and wait for sure things you won't get in much trouble but you won't win at bridge.

However, there are two disadvantages to competing. The first is that sometimes you get doubled and the second is that sometimes you help your opponents. Left to themselves, North and South would have arrived at a four spade contract by way of one heart, one spade, two spades, four spades.

East's two diamond overall forced South to bid two spades, rather than one. This encouraged North to give a jump raise to game (he did have excellent spade support).

When it got back to South he did some serious thinking. Obviously, North held nothing in diamonds and not too much in high cards. But a slam was possible and South bid five spades. Now North went on to the slam. His singleton ace of clubs looked better to him all the time.

There was no play to the hand. South ruffed the second diamond, drew trumps with two leads and went after the hearts. When they broke four-two he spread his hand.

foreign shipments, Faunce said, adding:
"Once these shipments are started, any port can compete for them and the Port of Philadelphia has strong competitive advantages for most movements."

It also will help Philadelphia obtain additional steamship services, said Faunce, because steamship lines operating on an eight month route must have winter ports. The Seaway route is open only eight months of the year.

Erie normally handles about seven million tons of cargo each year, but Joseph Martin, administrator for the Port of Erie Commission, predicts its new seaport facilities will boost the tonnage by 30,000 tons this year and 300,000 tons annually in the next several years.

The French freighter "Ville de Quebec" was the first ocean-going ship to dock at Erie. It picked up a cargo of 1,131 drums of oil weighing nearly 700 tons May 19 for European markets.

Martin said some 30 sea-going ships are expected to dock at Erie before the navigation season ends this year. Outside of ore boats there were no foreign vessels docking at Erie until the new seaport opened.

The Port of Erie was opened in conjunction with the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway. It is looking for business and all indications point it will be a busy place in the years to come.

Demo Advisory Council Scores G. O. P. Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic Advisory Council has taken a luster whack at Republican "veto government." By implication, it also said it doesn't think Democratic leaders in Congress are doing enough to make a clear-cut party record for 1960.

"Until there is a Democratic president in the White House," the council said in a statement Sunday, "we face the refueling and corrosive effects of 'veto government.'"

"The Congress has been continuously threatened with presidential vetoes in the attempt to thwart one constructive and necessary measure after another."

The council said Congress should ignore the veto threats, rather than yielding. But with implied criticism of Democratic leaders, it added: "Time-consuming efforts have been made to water down proposed legislation to the limits of what the President might accept, or to what might win the support of the two-thirds majority in each house necessary to override a presidential veto."

The council, headed by National Chairman Paul M. Butler, has 27 members, including former President Harry S. Truman and Adlai E. Stevenson.

It does not include the Democratic Congress Leaders, Speaker Sam Rayburn in the house and Lyndon B. Johnson in the Senate. These powerful Texans declined to join when the council was formed and are not bound by its policies.

The council, mostly Butler's branch, is aimed at setting party positions on national issues. But without the active backing of Johnson and Rayburn, many observers feel, its effect is somewhat limited.

The council laid down what it called a minimum program for congressional action this session. This included stronger civil rights legislation.

RADIO and TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP) — For some reason, the most popular estimate of a top-salaried television star's income is "around $250,000 a year."

The Internal Revenue Service would be amazed at the number of performers authoritatively rumored to garner this impressive sum.

Since the government stopped reporting individual salaries, about the best anybody can do about figuring how much who makes is to elicit some educated guesses, average them off and then shave them a bit.

The best paid TV stars are the good business men and women like Desi Arnaz and Lucille Ball, Dick Powell and David Niven, Loretta Young and a handful of others who not only act but own all or an important chunk of the properties in which they appear.

Guests on actors' pay checks indicate that James Arness, the popular Marshall Dillon of "Gunsmoke," draws something between $50,000 and $70,000 a year. James Garner, the alternate week hero of "Maverick" last season made something like $25,000 for 13 shows. Will Hutchins, a comparative youngster among the shootin', fightin', ridin', veterans, made perhaps $1,000 each for 20 of the "Sugarfoot" series.

Probably the best paid in the whodunit area is Raymond Burr who has the title role in "Perry Mason." Burr makes somewhere between $90,000 and $100,000 a year.

The ones who are doing best, however, are the actors who have a slice of a successful package.

Blake Edwards, who dreamed up and produces Peter Gunn, gave Craig Stevens an interest in the show. That is policy, too, for Ziv, one of the big packaging companies in TV, which last year grossed 42 million dollars. Some of its stars include Lloyd Bridges with "Sea Hunt," Broderick Crawford with "Highway Patrol," and Richard Carlson with "MacKenzie Raiders."

Under Ziv's share-the-profits plan, Bridges is expected to make about $300,000 by year's end; Crawford, $250,000 and Carlson, $235,000. Dane Clark, with a 10 percent interest in Ziv's new "Bold Venture" series, is expected to bank about a million by the time it is retired.

ANOTHER HURDLE

As Pennsylvania Congressmen in Washington pressed for an immediate resumption of work on the Kinzua flood control dam now that the Supreme Court has removed legal obstacles, boosters for the project in the Warren area expressed high elation over the latest development in the long battle for the reservoir.

As stated in Monday's issue the High Court rejected a plea of the Seneca Indians to review a lower court decision upholding the government's right to flood part of the reservation through construction of the dam.

Rep. Leon H. Gavin, of this district, who has led the fight for the dam, as was to be expected, hailed the decision as one which will end the long construction delay. Along with this information news dispatches say that Pennsylvania's two senators, Joseph Clark, Democrat, and Hugh Scott, Republican, both are urging Chairman Allen J. Ellender, Democrat, of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee, to provide new funds for the dam and to reject a recommendation by the House for a new engineering survey.

On the other hand Edward E. O'Neil, attorney for the Senecas, who has been a delaying factor in the situation, says he is undecided on whether to ask the Supreme Court to reconsider its action. He says his next step may depend on the course the Senate takes on the move for a new survey.

In the meantime reservoir boosters throughout the valley continue to laud Representative Gavin for his magnificent and successful campaign to surmount roadblocks that have been thrown by the opposition to delay start of construction on the dam twelve miles below the New York State border, providing a reservoir that would extend into New York State.

Our congratulations are extended to The Herald, which Monday began its ninety-fifth year of publication as Titusville's daily morning newspaper. May The Herald continue to enjoy the success and confidence its record has earned for it since it was founded back in the early 1860's.

WORLD TODAY

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Those powerful Texas twins—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson and Speaker Sam Rayburn, leaders of the House and Senate Democrats — are in a strange spot for them. They're in the middle.

Republicans berate this heavily Democratic congress, where Johnson and Rayburn are undisputed bosses, for trying to go too far. Now some leading Democrats are swiping at the two Texans for not leading the Democrats far enough.

This is an odd turn of events for this shrewd pair of politicians. They started this year with a Congress where the Democrats, because of their 1958 election victory, had an almost overwhelming majority.

It was thought then — because of the big Democratic majority and the fact President Eisenhower was in the last two years of his second and last term — that Johnson and Rayburn, not Eisenhower, would call the tune and the shots.

The Democrats talked of programs far broader than Eisenhower had in mind. But this was at a time when the country still didn't know whether it was truly pulling out of the 1958 recession.

Big programs — and big-spending programs — might have been a necessity if the recession continued. But it didn't. The country was moving out of recession into another potential boom.

And Eisenhower, probably with the help of some smart political advice, found a way to put the Democratic majority on the defensive. This was in his campaign — sounded over and over — against the danger of inflation and big spending.

He put the label "big spenders" on the Democrats. It made them self-conscious.

But he had a weapon to use against them, too. This was the threat he'd veto any programs which the Democratic-run Congress passed but which he considered excessive. It has been a potent weapon, augmented by a constant needling from Republican leaders in Congress against

Here and There

The Warren Ledger, of June 13, 1978, carried the following interesting item under the heading: "Death of a Seneca Chief!" The spirit of Isaac Halftown, the venerable chief of the Senecas, passed to the Happy Hunting Grounds at half past eight o'clock Thursday morning, near Carrollton. The aged chief was born in Genesee county, and moved with his tribe to the Allegheny Reservation, where he has since dwelt. He was chief until a change was effected in the mode of government of the tribe. Halftown was one of the oldest Indians on the Reservation, having reached the ripe old age of ninety years. In all their councils he was regarded as the seer of the reservation. Influential among the Indians, he was widely known among the whites, and respected for his straightforwardness, honesty and uprightness in all dealings with them. Friday funeral services were held over the body of Isaac Halftown, the deceased Seneca Chief. About forty Indians and a few whites gathered at his rude cottage, about three quarters of a mile below Carrolltown, at ten o'clock in the morning. After speeches were made in the Indian tongue by Ben Lewis and Amos Killibuck, two of the wise men of the tribe, the remains of the chief, already encased in a coffin, were loaded on a spring wagon and taken to the Indian Burying Grounds at Horse Bend, on the Allegheny River, about two miles distant. Here the emaciated frame of the old man who had once been Chief of the Tribe, was laid to its final resting place. In compliance with the old custom the feet were placed to the east and the head to the west. The Whites, without exception, have a good word to say about the old Chief.

The June, 1959, issue of Motors News, the official publication of the Automobile Club of Southern New Jersey and the Shore Motor Club (AAA), features an article on Titusville written by Atty. Up Goes the Budget; Where It Will Stop, Who Knows?

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Looking ahead for from one to 10 years—the U.S. government budget for fiscal 1961 is now estimated at over 80 billion dollars. This is close to the 1959 record peacetime expenditures of 81 billion. But it is three billion dollars over President Eisenhower's requested 77-billion-dollar balanced budget for 1959.

If the government practices strict economy over the next decade, its budget is expected to rise automatically to 87 billion for fiscal 1969.

Or if the government goes in for a medium rate of growth, the budget will be about 97 billion.

BUDGET DIRECTOR Maurice Stans and his top aides have been repeating these estimates for the last few weeks. But so far they have not made much impression.

House of Representatives is now completing its first passes on the last of the dozen appropriation bills for the fiscal year beginning July 1. There is an indicated total cut of about one billion dollars below President Eisenhower's budget request of last January.

If the Senate restores House cuts or increases the appropriation amounts—which frequently happens—it will be almost impossible to balance the 1960 budget.

One feature of this 1960 budget not generally appreciated is that it is not the economy budget which some administration critics and advocates of greater spending have tried to make it appear.

It calls for the largest peacetime defense program in history, 45.8 billion dollars, or 60 per cent of the total.

IT ALSO CALLS for record peacetime expenditures in other fields, 4.5 billion for military and space research, 912 million for other civilian research, 1.1 billion for water resources development, 6.1 billion for other federal public works, 7.1 billion aid to state and local governments, 678 million aid to public health, 479 million aid to education. It is a big spending budget.

Since the national debt will be 285 billion dollars on July 1 and will probably go to 292 or 295 billion during the coming year, President Eisenhower has now asked Congress to raise the permanent debt ceiling from 286 to 288 billion and to authorize an emergency debt ceiling of 295 billion until June 30, 1960.

To take care of greater government borrowing, which this higher debt ceiling makes necessary, the President wants the present 4.25 per cent ceiling on government interest rates removed.

He would apparently let interest rates go as high as the money market demanded. On U.S. savings bonds, the President recommends raising the interest rate from 3.25 per cent to 3.75 per cent.

The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania added something new for the girls to its extensive library of 18mm sound motion pictures available without charge for showing to organized women's clubs. Produced by the Bell System in cooperation with Good Housekeeping magazine, the new fifteen-minute Technicolor film, "Plan for Pleasant Living" is made to order for ladies who like to look through model homes as nearly every woman does. It dramatizes ways in which a home can be given the best in comfort, convenience and color by careful planning, using Good Housekeeping's model home in Middletown, New Jersey, for the purpose. During the film, viewers travel with the camera's eye on a room-by-room tour of the home while a hostess describes features and innovations that go into basic design, furniture placement, color selection and similar phases of home-making. Program chair-ladies or other representatives of local women's groups can arrange for free use of the new film by calling the local Bell Telephone Company business office. Also available through the Bell office are copies of the company's catalogue of films and lectures designed for use by civic, social and educational organizations.

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield has appealed for public support in his intensified war on "ruthless mail order merchants in filth who are violating the homes of the nation in defiance of the national government." Obscene mail dealers today are taking advantage of one of the nation's most cherished privileges to carry on their smutty trade — the first-class letter that is guaranteed private. This sanctity of the letter must never be disturbed, but at the same time it is almost impossible for the Post Office Department to detect the materials sent by smut merchants in plain envelopes — unless we, the public, do something about it. Materials contaminating the mails, Mr. Summerfield says, include filthy films and books, and dirty pictures, slides and related filth, advertised in highly objectionable circulars sent indiscriminately to homes here and all over the nation, he said. Mail order dealers in pornography and obscenity are realizing half a billion dollars a year from their filth business, he has reported to Congress. No wonder, as Mr. Summerfield emphasized, obscene mail business is increasing.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor
Elsa Schiaparelli says American men are lazy and sloppy.
This also is true, in a lesser degree, of all men, even Europeans, says the imperious Schiaparelli, whose ideas on dress and manners have left an imprint on a generation of international society.

The Paris designer is annoyed because men won't take the trouble to dress up any more.
"I get more disgusted with men all the time — particularly traveling Americans," she says. "They start out on a trip to Europe and never bother to pack a dinner jacket. This is not only stupid — it's bad manners."

"Dozens of times recently I have invited a man to a dinner party, mentioning that he should wear a black tie. Only to be told gaily that he didn't bring one along. Invariably he adds — 'I'll just have to come as I am.'"

Schiaparelli takes a dim view of all phases of the current American craze for casual living.
"Give a man a chance and he'll be so casual that he won't bathe, shave or comb his hair. He'll just depend on his animal magnetism to get him by," she says.

Schiaparelli aired her views during one of her frequent trips to New York to check on her many American enterprises.
"People dress pretty badly now every place — in Paris as well as New York. There doesn't seem to be any elegance any more, and nothing is important enough to be grand occasion. It has become fashionable to be bored and careless."

"I feel life should have its great and brilliant moments, when men and women dress in the grand manner, and festivity is set in a formal frame. There are times to be casual and times to be correct. It's all right to wear a sweater and slacks on a picnic, but they don't belong in the theater or the drawing room."

"It's not polite to refuse to dress for a party. It's an insult to your hostess. After all, correct dress is a part of good manners."

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen
(© 1958: By The Chicago Tribune)

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

A COMMON DRIFF
Postnasal drip is one of our most common ailments. The majority of victims are healthy and they have X-rays of their sinuses and doctor bills to prove it. Mucus from the nose collects in the back of the throat and produces considerable gagging, hacking, and coughing when it reaches more sensitive areas.
The membranes of the nose and throat are covered normally by a thin layer of mucus that protects this lining and keeps it clean. More of this secretion is present among city dwellers who inhale dust and dirt with every breath.

The same applies to the heavy smoker who is concentrating his air pollution. The secretions increase also when a cold or a nasal disorder develops. Many northerners are bothered chiefly in the winter months as they go in and out of overheated and underhumidified offices and homes. Allergy also is a possibility, especially at this time of the year.

Sinus disease is considered at one time or another by everyone with postnasal drip. But sinus victims are more likely to be bothered with headache, nasal stuffiness, and disturbances of smell rather than a slight dripping down the back of the throat, except when the sinuses are draining. But these structures deserve to be examined when postnasal drip is present, even tho there is only an off chance that they are involved.

Sinus disease is deceptive and specialized tests are needed to make the diagnosis.
In the days before antibiotics, many persons used nosedrops over a long period of time to eliminate what they thought was nasal or sinus trouble. This type of medication is designed to be used for a few days and not for weeks, months, or years.

When nosedrops are used constantly they keep the membranes in a perpetual state of turmoil and the nasal discharge continues so long as the drops are used. These individuals get well as soon as treatment is stopped. A dilute salt solution (½ teaspoonful to a glass of warm water) is an excellent substitute because it cleanses without irritating.

(Dr. Van Dellen will send a leaflet on postnasal drip if self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

BUILT-IN SNUFFBOX

D. L. writes: Why is the pit at the base of the thumb between the tendon of the extensor pollicis longus and the tendon of the abductor pollicis longus called the anatomical snuffbox?
Reply
If you know the names of these muscles you should know why this area is called the anatomical snuffbox. This is a slight depression that forms on the back of the hand near the thumb side of the wrist when the thumb is pulled back. It is more noticeable in men than women. When the use of snuff was popular in the old days, it was common practice to put a pinch of snuff in this depression, raise the hand to the nose, and sniff.

BLEEDING DISEASE

G. H. writes: What is done for hemophilia?
Reply
Blood plasma is administered. This agent contains substances that increase the clotting ability of the blood. Between hemorrhages, the victim of hemophilia should be careful not to injure himself. If an accident occurs, the cut should be covered promptly and pressure applied to bring bleeding under control.

BLEEDING ULCER

D. F. writes: How can a person take care of his ulcer to prevent internal bleeding?
Reply
By following his physician's advice to the letter regardless of whether you mean eternal or internal bleeding. Surgery may be needed if ulcer fails to heal. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on peptic ulcer.

NEW YORK (AP)—The nations seem to be choosing up sides today for world trade.
American manufacturers, miners and farmers who sell their products overseas, or would like to — and American businessmen who see foreign products competing with them here at home — have something new to deal with: trading blocs.
The latest taking shape is the Outer Seven.
It is nudging in alongside the Inner Six.
In the talking stage are trading blocs for Latin America, for some new African nations, and perhaps for the Moslem lands.
An older and well established one is the British Commonwealth group, strung across the globe. Its nations enjoy certain preferential treatment.
And one whose shape is both vague and fearsome is the Communist League. Its effect on world trade is uncertain but already disturbing.
The United States, long accustomed to being a top factor in world trade, may find increasing competition from the blocs as they grow stronger. The slip in its own export trade has been showing for some time.
The newest bloc being mulled over today is the Trading Association outlined in the meeting of seven European countries in Stockholm, Sweden.
American industry will be given a new cause to re-appraise its methods: its production costs, its pricing and credit policies, the quality of its old products and its search for new and better ones.
But for the time being public interest will be in watching how the Inner Six and the Outer Seven resolve their many differences.

Protect Skin While Wooing Tan

If you want to be a golden girl rather than a blistered one, take your suntanning in easy stages. And from beginning to end of summer, use a lotion or cream which contains a sun-screening agent. This girl (left) pays special attention to her shoulders since they pick up the rays of the sun readily. She remembers (center) to protect her hair with a straw hat and her eyes with sunglasses when she's in the direct glare of the sun. Here, she has donned a poncho to protect her skin since she's not yet ready to leave the beach. She remembers that her legs are especially vulnerable to the sun's rays (right) and gives them a fresh coating of sun lotion each time she comes out of the water.

BY ALICIA HART, NEA Beauty Editor

No cosmetic is more flattering than a healthy suntan. Your eyes look brighter, your teeth sparkle, and summer pastels take on added delicacy by contrast.

Unhappily, summer may not be a golden season but a painful one to some. Still, there's no need to be tortured with blisters and sunburn. A lovely bronze tone can be acquired with self-discipline, knowledge and the aid of a good suntan lotion.

Although the sun is a tonic, enjoyable to take and satisfying in its fulfillment of beauty and health, it can be a formidable foe, with some pretty tricky ways. Its ultraviolet rays—the ones that burn—are often not felt. So don't complacently loiter under a protecting umbrella. It won't protect against rays bouncing off sand or water.

Watch out for deceptively hazy days. A good sunburn can creep up on you all unsuspecting in the cool, seemingly sunless air. During June and July, the sun is most intense from noon to three p.m. So particularly between those hours, go easy about trying to tan.

Learn to limit the amount of burning rays you permit to penetrate your skin. Start tanning by staying in the sun for just a short time the first day. Then lengthen it gradually each succeeding day. Science, too, can help in the form of a suntan product, both for an even tanning and as a burn preventive.

No product can be all things to all people. Your choice will depend on the sensitivity of your skin, how long you want to stay in the sun, and whether or not you have an aversion to oil.

One leading firm has placed on the market several suntan products to meet the problem of each individual. And here's how to choose what's best for you:

Suntan oil is for those who need the least protection. Overexposure must be avoided, for its tan is rapid.

Suntan cream also contains oil, but offers greater protection. Suntan lotion is non-oily, but provides good protection for most people, while permitting development of a good tan. Shade lotion contains more sun-screening agent. It is for those who stay in the sun for long periods, and is excellent, too, for children.

Apply your lotion evenly over all exposed areas, and repeat the application at intervals while you're in the sun.

As a final word of caution, wear sunglasses to protect your eyes.

If you're careful about choosing the right suntan product for your skin type and are practical about the length of time you spend each day in the sun, summer will surely be the time of year when you look most attractive. It will indeed be the golden season for you.

WIVES STILL SPEND 22½ HOURS ON JOB—

Household Technology Outdistanced by Sputniks

BY AILEEN SNOODY
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Not everyone would agree with what makes an average housewife "average." But one thing is certain. She doesn't have as much time on her hands as some persons say she does.

If we don't know who she is, at least we now know what Mrs. A. does with some of her time. For 22½ hours each week she cleans house.

This is the actual washing, sweeping and mopping up after a husband, slightly more than two children and at least one dog or cat. In her spare time she cooks, washes dishes, straightens up and does the laundry, plays chauffeur, nurse and referee.

Feeling a wee bit weary after outlining all these duties, Mrs. Jane Stewart says "there is something drastically wrong when a woman must spend more than 20 per cent of her waking hours just cleaning."

As director of a survey institute for a cleanser and disinfectant maker, Mrs. Stewart captioned a study to find out just how much work a woman did in her home. It is the first in a series of studies the end result of which, she explains, is to find ways to reduce this work load.

A housewife spends two hours and 45 minutes a day, six days a week, on cleaning chores and six hours weekly on a general clean-up.

Favorite cleaning spots are the kitchen and the living room with the bedroom receiving the least attention, unless there is a foyer which receives a brisk 10 minutes a day once over.

If you are an average housewife you sweep, mop and clean the range, refrigerator and sink every day using hours of good chat time a week.

Mrs. Stewart deprecates what she considers unnecessary time wasted by women because of antiquated methods.

"In an age when we can travel at the speed of sound and put satellites into orbit, women still use Victorian cleaning methods."

Not claiming to be an efficiency expert, she still says "at least, 25 per cent and possibly half the time spent in housecleaning can be eliminated." "How? Her solution is through development of comfortably efficient working methods."

Test runs are in progress now in model homes to discover where a woman can cut corners and still have a spotless house.

Until the results are known and solutions worked out, it's back to the mop and pail.

Matter of FACT

In the heart of Germany, stretching for some 57 miles between the Weser and Elbe rivers, are the Harz Mountains, noted for their old castles and picturesque scenery and for the canary birds and hand-made laces which are exported from the region. Several peaks in this most northerly of German ranges rise to more than 3,000 feet, but the average is about 1,000 feet.

JAMESTOWN C. OF C.
HEARS HARMON ON CONEWANGO PLAN

Playing host to both friend and foe of the Conewango Valley Diversion Plan last Saturday morning the Jamestown Chamber of Commerce made a definite move to put the fundamental facts of this controversial issue before its members. The meeting, held in the new office building of the Chamber, attracted a sizeable crowd who listened attentively to Mr. Harmon, project engineer of the Allegheny Reservoir, as he detailed the pros and cons of Dr. Morgan's latest plan, plan number six, and point out where the Corps of Engineers and Dr. Morgan agreed, and disagreed. After a short initial talk, aided by slides, Mr. Harmon asked for questions and his audience was so responsive that this portion of the meeting was only halted when Mr. Harmon had to leave to make plane connections.

As the questions coming from both proponents and opponents of the Conewango project, poured in on him Mr. Harmon, appearing more as a soft-spoken, good-natured school teacher than a staid engineer, answered and explained each with unfailing patience. His sincerity and dry humor — at one point he demonstrated the operation of a mammoth dirt-mover by becoming a contortionist — held the tempers of the concerned parties well within bounds and encouraged his listeners to display an unusual degree of open-minedness in what was undoubtedly a tense situation. Stating flatly that Jamestown had been flooded with misinformation concerning the status of the Conewango project Mr. Harmon pointed out that the Corps of Engineers is only doing the job Congress had set them to do. That in the interests of economy further investigation of the Conewango project had not been supported by the Corps of Engineers. But that if Congress decided it should be done, they could instruct the Corps to do it, or could turn to one of the other government agencies which have engineering departments.

Referring to the wide variance in the estimated cost of the Conewango project, Mr. Harmon pointed out that neither the Corps nor Dr. Morgan had enough information available to make an accurate estimate. To support this, he explained that on the Kinzua Dam a detailed study costing well over a half-million dollars had been completed and because of it the Corps had information which allowed them to compute the probable cost quite closely; but on the Conewango Plan, with no such comprehensive data, only comparative-cost figures could be used for the purpose. However, he did state emphatically that never in the experience of his office of the Corps of Engineers have they ever been able to have bidders approach the low figure Dr. Morgan uses in computing cost of earth-moving in his estimate on the Conewango Valley Diversion project.

Among those hearing Mr. Harmon's talk as guests of the Jamestown Chamber of Commerce were delegations from Randolph, Kennedy, Conewango, and other communities of the Conewango Valley. Some of these persons favored the Conewango Valley Diversion Plan, but most, as members of the Conewango Valley Improvement Association, were unfavorable to the proposal and are working hard to prevent having the flood-control project re-located in their community. Those attending from Warren were Sam Hoffman, Warren Area Chamber of Commerce, Eugene Anderson, Warren County Improvement Association, and Don Neal, publicity, Flood Committee Chamber of Commerce.

Summer Festival Week Under Way In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Have soft summer breezes trailed the veil of fancy across the austere, care-burdened brows at City Hall?

Has the merry moon madness at last shaken the gravity of those always so busy about the affairs of great pith and moment?

Put another way, have a lot of important Philadelphians gone delightfully daff?

You bet they have. The latest eruption of the new spirit of frolic came Sunday with the opening of the city's summer festival week.

The kickoff was some high-falutin monkey business. Two chimpanzees were joined at the zoo in what city spokesmen called "the wedding of the year."

Michelle, the bride, long a favorite of the children, wore a white gown created especially for her and adorned with sequins, seed pearls and rhinestones. The short puffed sleeves were okay, but the long train was made for mischief as Michelle and Tommy walked up the aisle. The groom was togged out in formal dress and was only moderately disorderly.

Some radio and TV entertainers were in on the doings, too, one of them singing "Abba Dabba Honeymoon." A Shrine string band played.

After the cake was cut and gobbled and the chimps showed a human strain of orneriness about being told what to do, Tommy and Michelle were put on a plane for a trip to some secluded spot.

NEW YORK (AP)—A five-ton electronic encyclopedia crammed with facts about American life is on the way to Moscow.

The encyclopedia is an International Business Machines Corp. electronic computer with a built-in memory system. The machine will be displayed at the United States exhibition in Moscow July 25-Sept. 5.

Russian visitors at the exhibit can ask the computer 4,000 questions about American science, education or culture. The machine prints the answer on an electric typewriter—in Russian.

The machine, called RANAC, was built at the IBM San Jose, Calif., plant.

NEW YORK (AP)—European bowlers are getting a taste of automation, American style, for the first time.

Little Hope for Cut In Unemployment Taxes

HARRISBURG (AP)—There seems little hope for a reduction next year in unemployment compensation payroll taxes paid by Pennsylvania industry, a state official said Monday.

Paul J. Smith, director of the Unemployment Compensation Bureau, said the tax fund would have to hit 300 million dollars by Dec. 31. Last Friday it was $27,612,673.56. This does not include $96,440,000 which the state borrowed from the federal government recently when the fund dropped to an extremely low level. The federal money cannot be counted in computing the tax.

At Least 15 Violent Deaths Over Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
At least 16 people were killed accidentally in Pennsylvania over the weekend. Fifteen were the victims of highway accidents.

A shooting caused the only non-traffic death. Walter Anderson, 4, of Spring Grove, York County, picked up a .22 calibre rifle that his father had been using to shoot rats and unwittingly fired it. His three-year-old brother, Lloyd Thomas, fell dead.

The father had left the gun on a porch table.

Possibly the worst automobile accident killed two teen-agers. Their car overturned on a steep hill Saturday near Lock Haven while rounding a curve. It was raining.

The victims were Raymond Eagen, 16, of Farrisville, Clinton County, and Cloyce Brown Jr., 17, of Lock Haven. Four others were injured.

Ousted Neff Files Criminal Libel Charges in Firing

BEAVER FALLS, Pa. (AP)—Samuel G. Neff, ousted manager of the State Workmen's Insurance Fund filed criminal libel charges Saturday against Auditor General Charles C. Smith and Smith's deputy J. Alexander Jacobs.

Neff, a former State Senator and once head of the State Highways Dept. in Beaver County, charged the two state officials with criminal libel, furnishing libelous statements and conspiracy to falsely accuse of a crime.

The informations against Smith and Jacobs were signed before Alderman George K. Alderson in Beaver Falls Saturday night. No date was set for a hearing.

Neff was fired from his $12,500-a-year insurance post last Tuesday.

Large Delegation In Attendance at Jaycee Convention

A ten-man delegation of Warren Jaycees left today to attend the National Convention of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce which is being held in Buffalo, N. Y. this week. The local delegation will participate in the election of National Officers and other convention business.

Led by Jaycee president Chuck Thomas, the Warren group will include Past local Presidents Bill Cinger, Dick Cook and Bob Geiger; current local Board of Directors members Dick Munch, John Evans and Ron Platt; and members Bill Houston, Ed Farynowski and George Templeton.

As a winner of several awards in state competition, the Warren Chapter is in the running for some national awards. The Awards Program will be held on Thursday afternoon.

Over 10,000 Jaycees and their wives are expected to attend this 39th annual convention of the national organization. The most important item of business to be conducted by the delegates will be the election of the National officers for the coming year. Five Jaycees are running for the top post—one each from New York, Alaska, Mississippi, Alabama and Iowa.

At the State Parties which will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, the various state delegations will entertain by serving some state delicacy or specialty to the other conventioners. For example, the Iowa group will serve ears of Iowa corn while the Louisiana boys will be passing out shrimp.

Any other Jaycees desiring to attend the Convention on Wednesday and Thursday may do so by calling George Templeton Jr. immediately.

The Mature Parent

Lesson in Wrongly Placed Trust Can Be Profitable

BY MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

An aunt has upset Mrs. J.'s little girl by telling her what her parents were withholding until she was older—the news that her older brother is her mother's child by a previous husband.

Writes Mrs. J.: "This woman has never liked me and has accused me of marrying her brother to get a home for my boy. But I never dreamed she'd deliberately try to injure me in the eyes of my little girl."

Why didn't you dream of it, Mrs. J.? Why are you so shocked by this new activity of a malice that's been active before?

If we've had several experiences with another person's unreliability, we can't be angry with anyone but ourselves when he lets us down again. Instead of walling, "Oh, I didn't know anyone could be so mean!" we need to think, "Why did I invite this betrayal?"

Usually we'll find that our misplaced trust is actually our childish belief in our magical power. The reality is, we can no more change a person's dislike of us into affection than we could change the baby tooth under our pillow into a dime.

The change has to be made by the disliking person himself. Yet many of us, though we think we've outgrown our baby faith in magical power, go right on believing we can change him into a liking person if we are just sweet and patient enough. And we feel angry shock when our virtue fails to reverse the psychological laws that control the resentful person, and he strikes out at us again instead of clasping us to his bosom.

If we're not willing to look at our secret belief in our magical charm, those who watch us get kicked in the teeth can only conclude that we enjoy it.

I am not going to conclude that about you, Mrs. J. So please examine yourself for belief in some superhuman power to make your sister-in-law love you when she can't. When you've located it, your feeling of helplessness should disappear.

You may like others of us in similar situations, suddenly realize that your real relief lies not in altering this woman at all, but in altering what you can expect of yourself.

You've been disappointed, not by her exposure of the truth to your little girl, but by the exposure of your own misplaced trust of her. Which is fine. Now maybe you won't misplace it again.

Morrow Is Facing Biggest Threat to His World Ranking

By FRANK PITMAN

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Four years ago sprinter Bobby Morrow blazed to his first national victory on the cinder path here at the University of Colorado.

Now, weighted with honors, including three Olympic gold medals, a lame Bobby Morrow faces on these same cinders the biggest threat to his No. 1 world ranking.

In the National AAU Track and Field Championships Friday and Saturday, Morrow runs against a classic field. It was in the 1955 NAAU that Morrow, an Abilene Christian sophomore then, won his first national crown with a 9.5 seconds run in the 100 yard dash. The 23-year-old, 6-foot-2, 170-pounder lowered the NAAU mark to 9.4 last year.

His chief challengers are Bill Woodhouse, 21, 5-foot-10, Abilene Christian senior from Mason City, Iowa, and Ray Norton, San Jose, Calif., State senior. Like Morrow, both have churned the 100 in world record equalling official times of 9.3 seconds.

Ingemar Is Upset Over Stories of Dancing Parties

GROSSINGER, N.Y. (AP) — Incensed at reports that he hasn't been taking his training seriously, Ingemar Johansson came to his own defense today.

"I have been out dancing just twice," the Swedish challenger for Floyd Patterson's world heavyweight championship said. "And I have been on just two television programs."

Johansson, the undefeated European champion who meets Patterson for the title June 25 in Yankee Stadium, is upset at reports that he lacks enthusiasm for his task.

Likewise, he can't understand why he is criticized for not going after his sparring partners with more gusto.

"I don't believe in trying to knock them out," he shrugged, "so why should anyone else care?"

To date, he has put in 131 rounds in the ring and has missed just two days of work.

Ingemar appears to be working for speed and stamina. He apparently has enough confidence in his punching ability to concentrate on other matters.

He is on the road every morning rain or shine, and runs like all get-out.

400 Block Scores First City Loop Victory, 5-3

Using the three hits allowed, 400 Block Merchants won their first City softball game of the season Monday 5-3 from Sheffield on West Side field in a pitchers' duel.

Gundy Steffan pitched 3-hit ball to the Merchants who rallied in their fourth game of the season for a first win. Sheffield made a strong bid in bottom of seventh to top the Merchants' lead but fell short by two runs.

Boony Sturdevant, on the mound for the 400 Block sellers, competed on even hill terms with Steffan, also allowing only three hits to Sheffield.

Merchants lost two of their games by one run in an extra inning.

Steffan's wildness walked six men. Only two extra base hits were produced, Steffan and C. Berardi stroking doubles.

Strong winds aided the hurriers many times when it held up several long drives and enabled outfielders to grab them.

Thursday night, Merchants go against Betts Machine Shop Black Knights, favorite to win the league crown. Game time is 6:30.

Indians Once More Back In American League Top Spot

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer

Cleveland's revived Indians, once more thumping home runs, suddenly are back in the American League lead after winning six straight in a scramble to stay ahead of the fast-closing Detroit Tigers.

The Indians, counting all their runs on three homers, shot back on top with a 5-1 victory at Boston Monday night for a .002 percentage-point edge over Chicago's idle White Sox. The Tigers closed within 1/2 games of the lead by handing Hoyt Wilhelm his first defeat of the season in a 6-4 victory at Baltimore — their 15th in a 23-game rocket ride from the cellar.

Washington ripped Kansas City 8-5, with Harmon Killebrew hammering his 22nd home run for the Senators, in the only other game.

In the National League, Los Angeles trimmed Milwaukee's first place lead to one game, beating the Braves 4-0.

The Indians backed Gary Bell's three-hit pitching with solo homers by Jim Baxes and Woody Held and a clinching three-run shot by Minnie Minoso, who broke a 1-1 tie by tagging an 0-2 pitch in the fourth inning.

The Indians, who hit only five home runs while losing nine of 10 games in a skid from the top, now have belted 17 homers in their streak — one shy of the AL record for six games set by the 1936 Yankees. It all began last Wednesday, when Rocky Colavito triggered the blasting with his record-tying four in one game at Baltimore.

Since then, Cleveland has missed hitting a home run in only one game. Colavito is the individual leader in the streak with six. Minoso is next with four, three in three games in two days and good for a dozen runs.

The homers made it a breeze for Bell, who struck out nine but walked six while claiming a 6-5 record.

The Tigers, who have won six of their last seven, made it three in a row after getting only two infield hits for five innings off Wilhelm (9-1), who had won 10 straight since last September 15. Then they rapped the knuckle.

Braves Continue To Slump As Sluggers Are Shackled

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer

Just a month ago Milwaukee was riding a hot streak to a 4½ game bulge in the National League race. Now the Braves have a limp lead of one game with their sluggers shackled by shutouts.

The Braves were blanked only eight times all last year as they put away a second straight pennant. Now, with little more than a third of the season gone, they've been whitewashed six times — more than any other NL club except Philadelphia, and even the last place Phillies have suffered no more.

The champs were handed two consecutive shutouts for the first time, in four years Monday night at Los Angeles when the Dodgers made off with a 4-0 victory behind the four-hit pitching of Don Drysdale, who struck out 12.

It shed Milwaukee's lead over second place San Francisco to .019 percentage points in the only NL game scheduled.

In the American League, Cleveland made it six in a row and regained first place with a 5-1 victory at Boston for a .002 percentage-point edge over Chicago's idle White Sox. Detroit finally ended Hoyt Wilhelm's unbeaten string at 10, beating Baltimore 6-4. Washington defeated Kansas City 8-5 in the only other game scheduled.

The Braves now have lost 15 games while winning only 13 since taking that 4½-game lead last month. They've been shut out five times in the slump. They've also

Champ Begins Final Week of Serious Training

CHATHAM, N.J. (AP) — World heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson may not have much to say, but he's strictly on his own when training decisions are made. "This has been going on for several years," said manager Gus D'Amato today as Patterson started his final week of serious training for his June 25 title defense against Sweden's Ingemar Johansson in the Yankee Stadium. "But we haven't said anything about it. Floyd is the type who needs no trainer. He's that sharp."

D'Amato merely keeps a close eye on his prize chattel. He does all the talking, but looks for other things to do when Patterson starts his training sessions.

"I've heard all this talk about Floyd being overtrained," scowled D'Amato. "But it doesn't mean a thing. He knows exactly when he's had enough. He decides when, where and how long to work out. And I'll tell you something else. This simply cannot be overtrained. He can work all he wants to and still not be overtrained."

Possibly the only real top heavyweights down through the years who were their own bosses were Gene Tunney and Jersey Joe Walcott.

"Speaking of training," continued D'Amato, "I understand Johansson doesn't place much faith in them either."

"They tell me he hasn't been going at his training seriously enough. Well, you must realize that everyone has his own system. After all, he is undefeated in Europe, so he must know something about how to get ready for a fight."

Patterson plans to wind up serious training on Sunday.

Students End 14 Days Of Nonstop Bowling

POCATELLO Idaho (AP) — Idaho State College students Paul Fuchs, 23, and Roy Braun, 20, went fishing today as they rested up following 14 days of nonstop bowling. They claimed it set a record.

The two quit Monday because neither had strength to continue. They bowled 3,360 games, averaging five games an hour and 172 pins a game. The best score, by Braun, was 241.

They said the old record was 13 days—312 hours—but didn't know where, when or by whom it was set. Under the rules, they had to keep the bowling ball moving at all times.

Deadline Passes Without Pirates Announcing Trade

CHICAGO (AP) — The June 15 midnight trade deadline slipped by with the Pittsburgh Pirates failing to come up with a trade.

General Manager Joe L. Brown said he had talked with several clubs but couldn't get together on a deal. He had hoped to obtain a pitcher and an outfielder.

The Pirates open a 16-game western stand today with a three-game series against the Chicago Cubs. They'll also play St. Louis, San Francisco and Los Angeles before heading back East.

During the recent home stand, the Pirates finally got their batting eye back with Don Hoak. Bob Skinner and Dick Stuart hiked their averages.

Stuart showed the best improvement, hitting six home runs and batting in 13 runs with 20 hits in 53 trips to the plate and raised his batting average to .295.

Hoak came home on June 2 hitting .294 and jumped his average almost 20 points to .313. He currently is on a 13-game hitting streak, the longest of the year, on the club.

Back on May 8 Skinner's average was .081 but he has been hitting at a .359 pace (54 for 152) since then.

The Pirates Monday announced the signing of Rex Johnson, University of Southern California baseball and football star, to a bonus contract. The amount was not disclosed.

Johnson, who bats and throws right-handed, will be assigned to a Pirate farm club. He hit .320 in two seasons at USC.

Carl Erskine Quits Game As Dodger Pitcher

By CHARLES MAHER

Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carl Erskine — the only active major league pitcher who has thrown two no-hit games — is through.

Refusing to let the Los Angeles Dodgers carry him four more weeks, when he would become a 10-year man under the players' pension plan, the handsome little right-hander asked Monday night to be placed on the voluntarily retired list.

"When your time comes," he said, "the decision is not too hard to make. You know what's right."

"I came to the conclusion that this club really needs help in pitching. It's a young staff, so everybody has to be able to pitch a couple days in a row if necessary. I just figured I couldn't give it 100 per cent any more."

In a game where most men need a sleeve full of tricks to survive, the 32-year-old Erskine had been playing with no trump card.

"In my later games," he said, "I knew I had to be extremely careful. It's true that the less actual velocity or stuff you have, the less mistakes you can make. When you get to the point where you're relying a lot on a change of pace—with no fastball to fall back on—you've really got to be careful."

He worked 23 1-3 innings this year, lost three games and won none, and had an earned run average of 7.71.

Erskine won 122 games during his career and lost 78. His lifetime ERA before this season was 3.94.

Carl threw his first no-hitter in 1952 against the Chicago Cubs, missing a perfect game by the margin of a walk—issued to a pitcher. In 1953, he set a World Series record by striking out 14 New York Yankees in a single game. And, in 1956, he pitched his second no-hitter, against the Giants.

New Bank Job for Haney May Retire Him from Baseball

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Whether the Milwaukee Braves win the National League pennant — and — or World Series — this may be Fred Haney's last year as manager.

Haney has been appointed vice-president of the Studio City Bank, which opens next month in the San Fernando Valley, and he is anxious to spend more of his time here among his relatives and close friends. He has spent 42 years in baseball, is 61 years old, and says:

"I've reached a point in life where I want to enjoy myself, and that place is right here."

Haney said that whether the Braves win or lose the pennant the World Series will have no effect on his decision.

"If I feel at the end of this year as I do now, this may be my last season in baseball," Haney said. "When I came home this time I said to myself: 'Look what all this is! I go over and see my mother, who is 92, and my four grandchildren, and I enjoy being home.'"

"If I stay in baseball it will be with Milwaukee." Haney said he had not discussed his status with Milwaukee officials and that, in fact, he hadn't expected to say anything about it at this time, except that "this just came from my heart."

John McHale, the Braves' general manager, said in Milwaukee he was surprised at Haney's statement. "This is the first we've heard of it," said McHale.

DODGER COACH HOSPITALIZED

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dodger coach Charlie Dressen is in a hospital today suffering from a nasal hemorrhage. The peppy coach was taken to the hospital Monday night after hemorrhaging heavily before the Dodgers' game with the Milwaukee Braves. He broke a blood vessel in his nose during the last road trip, and the condition has not responded to surgery.

Stock Up On Safety for Kids

By WM. TAYLOR MCKEOWN
Editor, Popular Boating

Family boating means children aboard, and they will be a happy part of fun afloat if simple safety preparations are made.

Youngsters have been taken out on boats ever since they were a few months old. Smallest children romp safely in the cockpit of a power or sailboat if moored out of harm's way with a leash and safety harness, much like those used by offshore sailors in rough weather.

An older child may go out safely with an adult in a rowboat or runabout once he has been instructed how to wear a life vest, and the dangers of moving about while standing up. Life preservers are not enough. Teach your child to swim as soon as possible. This prevents fear of water.

Once a small child learns to swim he should still wear his life jacket whenever he is boating. A non-swimmer, even though he has on a jacket, may not know how to turn over and keep his face out of the water.

Stock up now with enough small life jackets for your own children, those of your guests and the friends youngsters may want to bring along. Make it a rule that your youngest crew members wear life jackets around the dock and aboard.

AMERICA AFLOAT

Round older children of proper use for your cushion preservers. These provide best flotation when the arms are placed through the loops on each side so that the cushion rests on your chest.

But life vests are preferable for larger children as well when they are sailing or playing in small boats that might capsize. Cushion preservers floating up under an overturned boat require considerable strength on the part of a good swimmer to submerge them and get them out.

Your children want to water ski? Investigate the new belt-type preservers that are worn by ski contestants. These are not approved for official use but can keep a skier afloat if he suddenly spills and has his breath knocked away.

For the guest who is uneasy on the water but spins a jacket, carry some of the new chip-on safety packets that are no larger than a pack of cigarettes but, when squeezed, immediately inflate from a CO2 cartridge into a water wing. Windbreaker jackets that hide flotation material or inflatable air bladders are available.

Neither of these items are meant to replace approved life jackets and cushions, but all help provide carefree fun.

Top Mileage In Economy Run Is Dauphine's 48.33

Warren area sports car enthusiasts took part in the first economy run of Warren Auto Sports last Sunday.

Course mapped for the drivers was over several miles of rural county roads on types that were not designed for the best mileage.

Many steep hills and sharp curves required drivers to accelerate and brake many times during the run. The 20 cars were "gassed" at a local station and then started on the run. Object was to see who could bring in best mileage for the class in which they were entered.

Henry Dahl and navigator Sid Blackman got 48.33 miles per gallon with their Renault Dauphine. Dahl is an imported car dealer. This was tops in Class B and took first place over all classes.

Second in Class B was Ellen Hessler who was driving her first competition of any kind in her Renault Dauphine. Four people were riding in the car, which got 38.66 miles per gallon.

Volkswagon of Bill Meekins won Class C honors with an 38.66 mpg. He tied for second overall.

In Class D, the 1958 Austin Healey of Bob Smith placed first with 31.11 miles per gallon.

Among the big cars in Class E, the 34 Jaguar of C. Levesque brought in 25.22 mpg. Concluding the run, participants had a picnic lunch at Crescent Park.

Bridegroom John Bizzaro Goes For Erie Ring Title

Erie's lightweight champion will be at stake June 23 when Johnny Bizzaro and Bob Walters meet to establish the crown and end a grudge in the ring.

The two young professionals will star on an All-Star boxing card in Cauley Auditorium at Fourth and Holland.

Bizzaro will be married this Saturday, three days before the fight. He said he will knock out Walters in two rounds.

With little love between the two leather artists, Walters explains that he "may have trouble for three rounds, but my experience and condition will bring me through with a KO victory in the final three heats."

Bizzaro and Walters are scheduled to go through six rounds.

Others on the card include Ring Magazine's "Prospect of the Month", Jim Pettaway, winner of all his eight fights, half by the KO route. Tony Christy, Pittsburgh, will face Pettaway in a feather weight battle.

Don Elbaum, promoter, released the names of Pancho Padilla and featherweight Alvin Green. KO artist Frank Smith and DeConli Cooper of Detroit. Cooper is the only fighter to "go the distance" with Smith.

Solly Hemus Pulls Stakes As Cards' Playing Manager

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The majors lost their only playing manager Monday as St. Louis skipper Solly Hemus acknowledged the full time chores of a field boss and went on the inactive list.

"Well, I guess that's it as far as my playing days are concerned," said the 33-year-old infielder who took over the Cardinals this season.

Solly, dubbed the mighty mouse for his pugnacity made his way in the big leagues on brains and hustle. He never had outstanding speed, power or rifle arm. He was a pesky hitter who could deliver in the clutch.

"It's not my age," Solly said of his retirement, "but being a manager, I just don't get time enough to keep my legs in shape and my batting eye sharp. It's a follow-the-leader kind of thing. I want my ballplayers to be in good shape and look up to their manager, and I can't stay in tip-top shape not playing everyday."

Judge Godard asked Long if he wanted to testify.

At the suggestion of his three court-appointed attorneys, Long answered: "I believe it would be better if I didn't testify. I sometimes get a little excited."

However, as expected, the often tempestuous governor broke into the testimony at times. His interruptions were calm, usually drawing smiles.

His actions and words were distinctly reversed from his performance before the Louisiana Legislature three weeks ago that led his wife Blanche to commit the governor to John Sealy Hospital and sign papers that he was mentally ill.

The governor's cousin, Dr. Arthur Long, and other family members agreed with Mrs. Long's decision.

For example, state aid for the schools—listed for $539,755,000 for the next two years—would total only 531 millions, a reduction of more than $3,700,000.

The same applies to the 5 1/2 million dollars chopped from state aid for school construction. The only other large slash proposed by the House Appropriations Committee was more than 2 1/2 million from the 5 million proposed to match federal aid on improving high school teaching techniques.

The governor's million dollar plan to start a program of community junior colleges was cut back to $300,000.

The budget cuts totaled 19 million dollars but the committee recommended seven million dollars in increase to make a net cut of 12 millions.

The biggest increases amounted to $3,185,000 for special education of handicapped children and $2,738,000 for state aid for closed schools.

Other legislative developments: Sunday Sales—The House decided to hold a public hearing June 24 on a Senate-passed bill imposing stiff fines on merchants doing business on Sunday in violation of the old "Blue Laws."

Budget—The House Appropriations Committee vote on the budget changes was 12-7, all of the Republicans voting against the recommendations.

Reorganization

(From Page One)

Mrs. Robert Voigt. Named also were two new board members, Mrs. Harlan Rus, Sheffield, and Mrs. Wendell Burgett, Lander, who will serve for three years.

Slates for both elections were presented by Willis Lundahl, who served with Ralph E. Sires, chairman, and Mrs. R. W. Steber as nominating committee.

Mr. Emhardt, second vice president this year, conducted both sessions, with routine reports by Mrs. Hamilton, Mr. Harrington, and the following group chairmen: Mrs. E. M. Bell, home service department; Mr. Lauffenberger, blood program; Mrs. Paul Harrington, Gray Ladies; Mrs. Harold Baker, Nurse Aides; Mrs. T. L. Armstrong, camp and hospital service for veterans; Mrs. R. W. Steber, other volunteer services.

Also Miss Irma Eba, for Eugene Brown's first aid program; Paul Steinkamp, life saving and water safety; George Fritts, Junior Red Cross.

Mr. Emhardt discussed results of this year's fund-raising campaign, showing an approximate $24,000 toward a goal of $28,000. In a breakdown on division results, it was shown special gifts and groups and commercial units were about even, industry and county totals were up slightly, while welfare funds and residential collections were down.

Considerable discussion ensued concerning ways and means for continuing the varied chapter services if the balance of $4,000 is not forthcoming from some as yet undetermined source; and what services might have to be deleted with an insufficient budget.

Continuing along the same lines, Mr. Harrington presented operating estimates for the coming year and a minimum budget of $18,300 for Warren county was adopted. This figure, including the $6,000 necessary for blood program, was arrived at by the finance committee. Mr. Harrington, Mr. Ryberg and Mr. Peterson, and will be increased when the national quota has been assigned.

In the board meeting, members accepted with regret the resignation of Mr. Slick as chairman of disaster relief and authorized a letter of appreciation for his diligent service and cooperation with Civil Defense in workable plans.

Announcement was made of the statewide conference in Harrisburg September 15-16; also that the chapter will be represented by a first aid detail at the Oil Centennial Parade in Titusville.

The conference was in recess today.

Truck Carrying 33,000 Pounds of Corn Wrecked

WAYNESBURG, Pa. (AP)—A truck loaded with 33,000 pounds of shelled corn shot out of control down a steep hill, rammed a car, then smashed into two buildings today in this Greene County community.

The driver, Richard Axt, about 40, of Ft. Wayne, Ind., escaped with minor injuries.

The motorist, George Shriver of Waynesburg, leaped to safety seconds before his car was struck. Axt told police his brakes failed as he started down the hill on Route 19. As he entered community's business section he headed in the wrong direction down a one-way street, reaching speeds up to 90 mph.

Democrats Lead Parade of New Registrants in County

Concern is shown in political circles on the high rate of Democratic registration in Warren County since the books were opened May 25 after the primary election last month.

Active campaigning by Democratic party leaders has been cited as a reason for the high rate of new registrations.

Up to date, 61 new Democrats have registered, against 16 Republicans.

The GOP party has been hampered to some extent since the death of county chairman, Allen M. Gibson. Active Republicans hope to offset the Dem advantage with the selection of a new county chairman and a reorganization of the committee.

Warren County has been known as a Republican territory, GOP holding a 2-to-1 edge for years. At present, Democrats are clawing away at the bulge, slowly cutting it down yearly.

A total of 18,180 eligible voters are now registered. This includes 11,985 Republicans and 5,836 Democrats; also 253 Non partisans, 105 Prohibitionists and 1 Socialist.

New Plan Would Let Your Bank Pay Bills

DALLAS (AP)—Let the bank pay the family's monthly bills and everybody will benefit, a Dallas advertising executive, E. B. Andrews, said. Writing in The American Banker, a trade publication, Andrews proposed having the customer send all his charge account bills to the bank. The bank would handle the accounts in one of two ways:

Under the first plan, the customer would authorize the bank to pay bills as they come in, up to a pre-set limit.

Under the second plan, the bank would send the customer a list of all bills at the end of the month. The customer would return the list with a notation of how much he wanted paid on each account.

Andrews said the plans would cut the number of checks written by the average family from 25 to 5 or 6 per month. Businesses, he said, would benefit through elimination of thousands of bills, envelopes, payment notations and individual deposits.

Struthers Wells Strike Situation Unchanged Today

Struthers Wells today said that there are no new developments in contract talks between the company and the International Association of Machinists union.

Local plant workers walked out at midnight Sunday. The plant in Titusville, which went on strike at the same time, went back to work Monday after a 28-hour walkout.

The men voted 104 to 88 to resume work after hearing recommendations to extend the present contract to Sept. 1. This will give the Boilermakers time to pattern their contract after that of "big steel" who are now in conferences, president of the Titusville union said.

Sen. Scott said "Sen. Ellender assured me he will do his best to oppose the additional survey." Scott said he also asked Ellender for approval of a five-million-dollar appropriation for the dam for the year beginning July 1. He added:

"Sen. Ellender was not very sanguine about providing the five million dollars."

At present there is a $1,400,000 unamused fund earmarked for the dam. It remains from two separate million-dollar appropriations made the last two years.

The Eisenhower administration recommended no new appropriation this year because of the litigation which was ended by the Supreme Court ruling.

Lawyer Says Liberace Has 'Bee in His Bonnet'

LONDON (AP)—A British lawyer told a jury today entertainer Liberace "appears to have a bee in his bonnet about people charging him with homosexuality."

The lawyer, Gerald Gardner, was summing up for the defense in the American pianist's libel suit against the Daily Mirror and its columnist William N. Connor.

Liberace charged that Connor implied he is a homosexual in a 1956 column. This described Liberace as "everything he, she and it can ever want," as well as "the pinnacle of sex-masculine, feminine and neuter."

Gardner declared nobody had suggested that the words were meant to imply the pianist was a homosexual until his own lawyer said so at the start of the trial.

News of Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I think they just gave up trying to make good movies." That's the analysis of the film industry's woes by Dennis Morgan, himself a victim of the system.

Not much has been heard from Dennis since he left Warner Brothers five years ago. Now he's back in action with a TV series, "19 Beacon Street," which takes over for Tennessee Ernie Ford July 2. Shed no tears for our boy. He earned top money for most of the 15 years he spent at WB and has lived sensibly. He looks great—just as handsome as when he sang "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody" under his real name of Stanley Morner in "The Great Ziegfeld."

"I haven't made a picture in five years because the studios haven't offered me anything I thought was any good," he said. "There have been scripts, yes, but they're pretty junky. Fortunately, I'm in a spot where I won't starve if I don't do them."

His problem: too many poor pictures. He feels it's a bad thing for an actor to be under contract to a studio where his fate is determined by the bosses upstairs.

"I couldn't take parts in good pictures that were offered by other studios," he recalled. "I had to bootleg my self out to get 'Kitty Foyle.' I did a test for it without the studio's knowledge."

"So I stayed at Warners and did bad pictures. Why? Usually it was because they promised me better things would follow."

Dennis argues that the producers lost the urge to make good pictures during the easy wartime and postwar years and have never fully regained it.

"There still aren't enough hits being made to keep the theaters busy," he remarked. "It's a shame, too. The movie house used to be the center of social life, especially in a small town. Now people are out of the habit of going to the movies."

Dennis did musicals, comedies and dramas at Warners and he was offered a variety of TV series, including several Westerns. He waited until "19 Beacon Street" because he thought it was different.

Boyle's Column

(Substituting for Hal Boyle)
By ED CREAGH
NEW YORK (AP)—The best way to see New York is with a 7-year-old boy.

He has the bright eyes you once had. You can see the crazy, muddled-up, wonderful, savage city as you never saw it before. Maybe you saw it once in all its sadly undisciplined glory. Now you see it, on your own, as a madhouse run by the inmates.

But take your 7-year-old son along and the wonderment, even some of the delight, comes back. You take him to the top of the Empire State Building. He looks at all four compass points. He nods, reserving his opinion.

Later he says: "Daddy, that was fun—being up in the Empire State Building."

And if this doesn't make you laugh you don't deserve to be a parent.

Some umpire, over 100 stories high.

Then you take the little monster—a term of affection in my family—to Chinatown. He likes it, the way he likes almost any place.

"Daddy," he asks, looking back at the Chinese people going about their business, or otherwise, all around him, "what's the difference between these people and us?"

And if you could answer that question you should be in the United Nations.

Most of all, though, he loves subways.

This will send a shudder through most New Yorkers—and many an ex-New Yorker. Subways are an invention of the devil, overcrowded, noisy, dirty and frequently frightening.

David thinks they're wonderful. You take him to see a live television show. He tries to act properly impressed by all the cameras, bright lights and hung-up account executives, but you can see that he's fidgeting. So you leave. "What would you like to do?" you start to say.

But before you say it he comes on with: "Daddy, couldn't we go somewhere in the subway?"

So you go down to the intestines of the city and fight your way into one of those overlighted, overpopulated, mobile slums known as subway cars. He loves it. He stands with a look of almost ecstasy, clutching one of those white poles, and is sad when he has to get off.

One night we kept David up after his bedtime while we sat in a restaurant discussing the old days with a friend or two.

Just about the time we expected him to fold he came up with: "Hey, let's get out of here. I want to see Times Square."

So he was taken there. He looked around at possibly the most flamboyant neon lights on earth. He shrugged.

"Let's find a subway station," he said.

We did.

Ike Considers Carrying Fight Direct to People

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower is considering carrying the fight for key sections of his legislative program directly to the people, the Republican national chairman reported today.

Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, the party chief, told newsmen at the White House that Eisenhower may go on television and radio to plug for enactment of the administration's foreign aid program and labor legislation.

Morton said after a conference with Eisenhower that even if the President does not go on the air, he may make a series of speeches in various sections of the country.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee has cut Eisenhower's foreign aid request by $266,800,000 to $3,642,600,000. A labor bill passed by the Senate left out several things the President wanted. The House is now debating the aid measure, and labor legislation is being considered by the House Labor Committee.

Morton went to the White House to tell Eisenhower how he sizes up GOP political prospects, on the basis of his travels around the country.

The GOP chairman predicted the Republicans can win the presidency and capture control of the House from the Democrats in 1960.

The situation in the Senate, also now controlled by the Democrats, is another story, Morton said. For the Republicans to take over there it would be necessary to defeat several Southern Democratic senators, he said. He said he sees little chance of that happening.

"CITIZENSHIP"

Address by Bruce Ayers, Boy Scout Executive, at annual Flag Day Exercises of Warren Lodge of Elks

Not too often these days do we hear the term "he is a good citizen." Either there just aren't many "good citizens" and the term has so few applications, or the term has no real meaning, or its qualifications are so vague that we are afraid to use it for fear of being uncomplimentary.

I should like to suggest a few signposts for good citizenship for I feel that Flag Day, with all its attendant ceremony, provides an excellent setting for such a subject.

Perhaps the first sign of a good citizen is that he knows what citizenship entails. Of course, there are certain age and residence requirements for the native born son of the United States of America. But the good citizen realizes that certain obligations are his. I would point out the obligations rather than the privileges since most of us are quick to see and to capitalize on the privileges while ignoring the obligations and responsibilities.

There are these basic responsibilities: obeying laws, conserving natural resources, registering to vote and voting, and, indeed, paying taxes.

In addition to these there is the implied requirement that the good citizen take an interest in what his government—local, state, and national—is doing. Although the ordinary citizen may not be able to keep up with the intricacies of all governmental operations, he should keep abreast of current trends and policies, and he should acquire the vital facts on matters relating directly to him and to his community.

A good citizen will speak up about matters of civic importance. A good citizen doesn't have to be a candidate for or a holder of an office in order to be a practicing citizen, but he should know the qualifications of office seekers.

A good citizen will strongly feel his obligation to be an active, participating citizen. He will take a leading part in community affairs. He will take to heart the commitment he made when he faced the Flag of the United States of America and said that he will "Pledge Allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the republic for which it stands, one Nation under God, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all."

"With Liberty and Justice for all." The conscientious citizen finds this his toughest assignment—to work day by day to see that friends, neighbors, business associates, and yes, strangers and members of minority groups, enjoy the liberty and receive the justice that each one of us pledged he would get.

It is easy to do part of the job of being a good citizen—getting the facts by reading the papers, registering to vote, voting. It is more difficult to carry the job through—speaking for the rights of others, actively participating in the community, helping to guarantee liberty and justice for all.

Each of you has given the Pledge of Allegiance hundreds of times. Your children do so each school day. You see, citizenship begins at a tender age. It continues for a lifetime. Love of Flag "and the Republic for which it stands" should be deep seated in the heart and should surge through the body with every heartbeat, not just give the soul a twinge at Flag Day, or Memorial Day or Independence Day, or when the bands are playing.

If the foregoing talk sounded like a preachment I would concede, without apology, that maybe it was. You see, part of my job is to give boys citizenship training. This, along with character building, physical fitness, and leadership experience, is a fundamental upon which the program of the Boy Scouts of America is built. My work is more lasting and the results are much more significant.

can't if community ADULT example is good.

May I enlist your efforts to become good citizens on behalf of the Flag, the Republic for which it stands, and for the youth of our Nation who will carry this emblem of valor, justice, fidelity, and brotherly love to greater heights.
